CITATION IN HONOUR OF
REV. MERCY J. ISAAC
AT HER EPISCOPAL CONSECRATION

Beloved in Christ, today we stand upon holy ground. We gather beneath the canopy of divine providence to celebrate a life predestined, preserved, processed, and now presented for higher service in the household of God. It is with profound reverence that we read this citation in honour of Rev. Mercy Joseph Isaac, a vessel of grace, a herald of revival, and a daughter beloved of the Most High.

Born on 31st August 1983 into the devout Christian family of Elder William and Deaconess Mary Bassey, frontline members of Mount Zion Gospel Church, Calabar, Mercy's life began within the womb of worship and the atmosphere of apostolic conviction. Her earliest days were nurtured in a home where the altar of God was kept burning, and from childhood it became evident that the hand of the Lord rested strongly upon her.

From her infancy, prophetic streams flowed consistently in her direction. Among the many words spoken, one remains a cornerstone in her divine narrative: the 1989 prophetic instruction that she be adopted as a spiritual daughter of the late Bishop E. A. Bassey, then General Overseer of Mount Zion Gospel Church. This divine act was more than an adoption—it was a sealing of destiny, a prophetic alignment revealing the wisdom of the Almighty. Bishop Bassey stood not only as a father to her, but also as the early spiritual father and mentor to Archbishop Cletus Bassey, in whose lineage of grace and apostolic authority this consecration finds continuity today. Thus, God ensured—across generations—the preservation of an apostolic mantle, a heritage of fire and fidelity.

As a young girl, Mercy experienced vivid encounters with the Lord that shaped her spiritual consciousness. In her tender years at Hillside International Nursery School, Calabar, she boldly declared before teachers and peers that she would grow up to be a preacher, and that someday she would proclaim Christ even in Saudi Arabia. Such a confession from a child was no ordinary utterance; it was prophetic.

Yet, as with all great destinies, seasons of contention arose. Distractions and battles of her youth sought to divert her feet from the consecrated path. But the God who makes broken vessels shine, and broken crayons still colour, drew her back by His irresistible grace. In the year 2000, Mercy returned fully to her covenant calling—and from that sacred moment, she has never looked back.

For a quarter of a century—25 faithful years—Rev. Mercy J. Isaac has served tirelessly across multiple expressions of the Lord's vineyard with the earliest being:

- Vice President, Youth Fellowship Winners Chapel
- Junior WOFBI Lecturer, Winners' Chapel, Calabar.
- Head of Operations and Branch Pastor, God's Heritage Centre, Calabar.

As she advanced in her stewardship, Mercy boldly launched Generation with Power Ministries and House of Impact; both served as prayer and leadership networks for Church and Marketplace leaders with the latter being commissioned by Archbishop Prof. Cletus Bassey and Pastor Edwin Ogelenya, the then Provincial Pastor of Living Faith Church Cross River State in 2011.

Rev. Mercy would again be summoned by God in 2014 into the city of Uyo to serve God's purpose at another level.

The intentional love, support, growth triggers, responsibilities and spiritual exposure from her spiritual parents and mentors- Archbishop Cletus and Bishop Blessing Bassey and Prof. Ashong and Rev. Angela Ashong provided the platform for her initial service as

- Head of Programs, Cletus Bassey Ministries.
- Assistant Resident Pastor, Destiny Mission Global Assembly Headquarters.

Today, she serves as:

- Global Youth Pastor, Destiny Mission Global Assembly
- Director of Training, Destiny Leadership Institute

- Regional Pastor – Destiny Global South West Nigeria, and
- Esteemed Member of the Apostolic Council of Destiny Mission Global Assembly.

She is equipped intellectually and spiritually. She holds a Masters Degree in Christian Leadership from LeadImpact University, Denver Colorado and is a certified and commissioned Chaplain. It is important to note that she served her people as Supervisor for Education, Abak Local Government Area from 2020- 2023.

Upon her appointment as the Africa Director of LeadImpact University, she has been at the centre of organising, hosting, and ministering at Pastors' conferences and revival flames across East Africa, strengthening churches, empowering leaders, and rekindling apostolic fervour.

Rev. Mercy is joyfully married to Evangelist Joseph Isaac, her covenant companion in life and ministry, and together they are blessed with a precious son, Moses-Ian; a heritage unto the Lord.

Her ministry voice is distinguished by honour, accountability, prophetic intelligence, and revival consciousness. Through platforms such as Not Too Young For This and The Summon, she has ignited hunger for God, stirred dormant giftings, restored believers to prophetic confidence, and awakened the Bride of Christ to the urgency of the times.

Across denominational lines and generational boundaries, she has built bridges with grace and rare emotional intelligence.

Her impact has earned her many affectionate names like, "Impact," "MercySpeaks," and "The Interpreter"—each testifying to her ability to clarify purpose, disentangle complexities, and translate divine burdens into practical wisdom for the Body of Christ.

Through her creative brilliance, strategic acumen, and prophetic activations, the Church of God has been enriched. Through her voice, destinies have been awakened. Through her life, many have found direction. And through her obedience, the apostolic heritage entrusted to her fathers has found faithful expression in her generation.

And now, with gratitude to God and joy in the Holy Spirit, Destiny Mission Global Assembly presents her for higher service. With solemnity and celebration, with honour and holy anticipation, we commend Rev. Mercy J. Isaac unto consecration as a Bishop in the Lord's Church—that she may continue to discern His voice, declare His will, deliver His purpose, and shepherd God's people with wisdom, courage, and apostolic insight.

To God be the glory,
To the Church, a gift,
And to this generation, a sign of divine continuity and grace.

Amen.

Congratulations, Dear, Bishop Mercy Speaks!

Today, my heart overflows in ways words can barely hold. I stand in awe, wrapped in gratitude, joy, and a deep sense of sacred wonder, as I celebrate this divine milestone in your life. Looking back over the years—over every season, every transition, every stretching and every rising—I am humbled and profoundly honoured to have witnessed the quiet, steady unfolding of God's masterpiece in you.

From our early days together at Remlords Tours and Car Hire in 2009, I saw something in you that time has only proven again and again—a quiet fire, grace wrapped in purpose, strength hidden within gentleness, and a heart that always leaned toward God, even when you didn't announce it.

Back then, none of us could have imagined how those simple, ordinary days were a Pathway in a journey that was quietly preparing an extraordinary vessel. But heaven already knew.

Being part of House of Impact and later witnessing your relocation to Uyo—your bold obedience to step into Destiny Global Missions—remains one of the most beautiful stories of divine alignment I have ever seen. I watched God stretch you, shape you, and enlarge you. I saw seasons where you stood alone yet stood strong; seasons where God re-calibrated your voice; seasons where you carried burdens unseen but emerged with deeper oil.

With every assignment, your obedience sharpened. With every refining, your calling became clearer. With every fight, your stature in the Spirit grew.

And now—beholding you being consecrated as a Bishop—my heart is full to overflowing.

GOODWILL MESSAGES

Your life is a walking prophecy fulfilled. From the child nurtured by devout parents, to the young girl boldly preaching her own ministry even before crowds ever gathered, to the woman who aligned her destiny under divine guardianship—you have journeyed a path that only grace could write.

Twenty-five years of devotion, sacrifice, service, tears, victories, and relentless commitment. But beyond the titles and responsibilities, beyond the travels and the platforms, you remain Mercy—the woman of fire and tenderness, the compassionate friend, the interpreter of purpose, the pillar many lean on, the voice of hope, the warrior and a gift to this generation.

I am deeply, profoundly proud of you. Proud of the journey you've walked. Proud of the battles you fought quietly. Proud of the woman you have become. Proud of the grace you carry with dignity. Proud of the minister, the wife, the mother of Moses-Ian (and siblings), the leader, the builder, and the vessel God has poured Himself into.

May this consecration open new fountains of wisdom, power, and apostolic fire within you.

May nations rise because you obey. May generations find God because you said yes.

May doors you never asked for open by divine election. And may the mantle upon your life burn brighter, speak louder, and carry farther with every passing day.

Congratulations, my dear Reverend Mercy J. Isaac.

The world is richer because you are here. This generation is stronger because of your obedience. And heaven rejoices because prophecy has found expression in you.

With heartfelt honour, admiration, and overflowing joy, Congratulations on your Episcopal Consecration.
